LOCAL NEWS.

Prof. George F. Moore of the Seminary will address the meeting at the Free Church this evening.

Caterer Wiggin served an excellent spread for the members of the Elm Club last Saturday evening.

All of J. W. Barnard's houses in Post Office Avenue are being painted by Dearborn of Ballardvale.

Miss May Winslow of West Brewster has been a guest at the home of George Dannels this week.

Next Monday evening, at G.A.R. Hall, the Cricket Club will hold an assembly, with music by the Andover Band Orchestra.

B. B. Tuttle moved the personal effects of the Phillips family from Central St. to Lincoln Mass., this week, where Mr. Phillips' son-in-law is settled as pastor.

A number of the Pynchard Cadets expect to attend the reception at Reading to-night, given by the Colonel of the 2nd Massachusetts School regiment.

H. J. Canfield and family have left town and are now located at Hotel Boreasford, Boston. Dr. Chamberlain of Lawrence will move to the Canfield property about April 1.

The street department is giving attention this week to the upper part of Park Street, raising the north sidewalk and repaving the road between Bartlet and Florence Streets.

The winter term of Abbot Academy comes to an end next Tuesday and there will be a vacation of two weeks. Phillips closes Wednesday for a recess of nine days.

Rev. W. E. Wolcott, pastor of the Lawrence Street Church, Lawrence, and who is known by many here, was married Wednesday to Miss Cora M. Wadsworth, daughter of the late H. A. Wadsworth, publisher of the Lawrence Eagle.

Indian Ridge Council of the Royal Arcanum held its regular meeting in Music Hall, Wednesday night, and about twenty members of the Merrimack Council of Lawrence came over to make a visit. They were hospitably entertained. Refreshments were served and there were remarks and songs, by local and visiting members.

At the interscholastic games in Mechanics' Hall last Saturday, the Phillips Andover representatives did not show up very strongly, owing, perhaps, to the short training. Finlay won first in the shot put, with a record of 34 feet, and Lewis secured third in the pole vault. James and Barker won trial heats in the short sprints, but lost in the finals.

At the meeting of the L. and S. Society of Pynchard last Friday night there was an interesting debate on the comparative merits of gymnastics and military drill. John Donovan and Miss Ida Farnum took the side for gymnastics and Thomas Lunan and Miss Ruth Wakefield the opposite. The favor of the members was largely with the latter for military drill, but the arguments were about even.

The Phillips glee, band and mandolin clubs gave a concert in Saunders Hall, Lawrence, Wednesday night to an audience which numbered only about 100 persons. The program included twelve selections, two being solos by L. G. Weston and J. C. McLaughlin. It was said to have been a delightful entertainment and it is surprising that there was not a larger audience.

Mr. William G. Means of Boston, and formerly of Andover, the founder of the Means prizes in Phillips Academy, a short time before his death provided for the payment to the trustees of the Academy after his decease of a thousand dollars for the general purposes of the Theological Seminary, and a thousand dollars for the use of Phillips Academy. These gifts have been paid into the treasury.

The Woman's Relief Corps will hold their next social and entertainment in G.A.R. Hall March 30, at 8 o'clock, and admission will be 25 cents. The laughable comedy in two acts, "The Black Diamond," will be given by home talent, and a new musical instrument, the "humanophone," will be introduced. Tickets will be limited on account of the seating capacity of the hall, and it will be wise to procure tickets before the 30th.

The South Debating Club held an interesting meeting Tuesday night. After a review of the events of the week by Jules Duval and a talk on a chapter of Bryce's "American Commonwealth" by J. Lewis Smith, there was a spirited political debate, the question being: Resolved that party allegiance is preferable to independence in politics. The affirmative was upheld by G. A. Christie and the negative by F. H. Foster. The club decided unanimously that the affirmative won. Rev. F. R. Shipman will give a talk on English politics at the next meeting.

The Blood is the source of health. Keep it pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which is peculiar to itself, and superior in strength, economy, and medicinal merit.

Red Spring Lodge, Good Templars will have a box party in Music Hall, Thursday evening, April 5.

The date for the Pynchard Alumni minstrel show will without much doubt be Friday evening, April 13.

The second number of the Pynchard Ensign appeared this week. It is proving to be a very interesting little sheet.

Advance checks for the cantata of Esther at Lawrence, April 16, 17, 18, can now be obtained of G. A. Christie of the Andover Press. These checks can be exchanged later for reserved seats.

Last Sunday was Palm Sunday and special services appropriate for the day were held at St. Augustine's Church. Hymns were sung by the choir, the hymn, Palm Branches, being rendered very pleasingly by Mr. J. H. Domaine of Lawrence. After the services the congregation received palms which they carried to their homes.

The vestry of St. Augustine's Church was well filled last Saturday night with an audience to witness the production of the Irish drama "Kathleen Mavourneen." The play, which has four acts, was performed under the direction of Timothy Mahoney in a most creditable manner and everyone present derived much pleasure from it. This was the only special observance of St. Patrick's day in town.

The auction of personal property at the Elm House last Saturday afternoon attracted a large crowd, quite a number being from out of town. Auctioneer Rogers conducted a lively sale, but it was impossible to dispose of the large amount of goods in one afternoon and so the sale was postponed and will be continued again to-morrow afternoon at 1 o'clock. All the chamber sets, bedding and many other articles yet remain to be sold.

It is very pleasant to hear the many good things which are being said about the TOWNSMAN, and we were much pleased to receive the following, recently, coming from Thomas Stock, a florist of Dorchester, and formerly connected with Mrs. Waterman's greenhouses here: "I was very much surprised at receiving such a fine paper. I consider it excellent, quite double the size and much better than most of the small town papers that I see, and I see quite a number of them."

Winter Tournament.

The annual winter tournament of the Phillips Athletic Association was held in the gymnasium Wednesday afternoon. The events and winners were as follows: Rope climbing, J. M. Abbott, '94; standing high jump, A. B. Maltby, '96; horizontal bar, L. Ullman, '94; running high jump, S. D. Pope, '96; parallel bars, H. L. Bodwell, '94; fencing, H. B. Wilcox, '94; running hitch and kick, A. Hine, '96; fence vault, F. G. McIntosh, '95; standing high kick, E. S. Woodruff, '95; putting shot, J. S. Finlay, '96; broadsword, H. B. Wilcox, '94; tumbling, H. L. Bodwell, '95; bantam weight boxing, M. B. Suydam '95. The judges were F. L. Luce of the Seminary, T. D. Thomson, and Prof. M. S. McCurdy.

"What's in a name?" Well that depends. For instance, the name of "Ayer" is sufficient guarantee that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a genuine, scientific blood-purifier, and not a sham, like so much that goes by the name of "sarsaparilla." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the standard.

Andover's 250th Anniversary.

The "Committee of Fifteen," as it was decided to call the executive committee chosen at the last annual meeting to plan for the town's forth coming anniversary, met at the town house last Saturday evening and organized with Dr. C. F. P. Bancroft as chairman and John X. Cole as secretary.

The question was discussed informally by those present as to the how and what of it and left for future meetings for any formal action. Meanwhile it is desired by the committee that every person who has ideas in regard to the movement of properly celebrating the day send them to the committee as soon as possible. The TOWNSMAN will also be open for a presentation of any phase of the question that will be of more general public interest. There should be universal interest in this matter.

The Forum again won the Debate.

The second joint debate between the two literary societies of Phillips Academy, Philo and Forum, took place in the Academy Hall Tuesday evening, quite a large audience, including many townspeople, being present. The judges were Rev. Frederic Palmer, Prof. C. H. Moore, and A. A. Freeman of the Academy. The subject of the debate was, "Resolved: That the American Republic is degenerating." Philo had the affirmative, being represented by Branch and Guillon, while Forum had Patterson and Gardner to defend the negative. Both sides argued well, but the Forum men had the best of it, as the judges afterwards decided. While judges were forming their decision the Glee Club sang several songs very acceptably.

What a Northerner Finds at Jacksonville, Florida.

A busy, wide-awake, thriving, progressive city. A peerless river, with ocean steamers lying at the wharves, or passing to and fro every day. A winter climate, in which it is a luxury to live and breathe. Artesian well water of which the thirsty may drink freely without fear. Fruits so luscious and tempting that "Brer Babbitt"

would say "Dey make de mouf water all day long." Green peas, ripe strawberries and orange-blossoms in February. Roses, and sweet scented yellow jasmine, blooming in mid-winter.
Beautiful, broad, well-shaded streets, but oh! how dirty! Streets paved with vitified brick in the most thorough and scientific manner; streets paved with chunks of wood in all stages and degrees of unevenness, and streets not paved at all, where man and beast still struggle to keep from sinking in the native sand. If all the cities of the Union should unite in a great prize
"street pavement" exhibit, the first prize and the "booby" would without question be awarded to Jacksonville.

Street cars with ancient and venerable mules for motive power. "Drivers who never read—"A merciful man is merciful to his beast." Fine horses, mutilated and disfigured in the fashion gone by at the North, and many of them cruelly bitten and checked; horses sleek and shining, well-fed, comfortably harnessed and humanely cared for;
hungry and thirsty looking mules
cruelly driven.

Churches with open doors and the hospitable legend "A cordial welcome to strangers," in a conspicuous place outside. Schools, where the tired little brains are crammed just as they are everywhere. A private Hospital, where many a young man from the North, ill and without means, has been tenderly cared for without money and without price. Hotels that any city in the United States might be proud of. A Fire Department that is "on the spot"
every time, before the fire has a chance to get control of the situation. Daily Papers that chronicle all that happens on the face of the earth at the shortest possible notice. Handsome stores, with choice merchandise attractively displayed in the windows. A "Union" charitable organization where Jew and Gentile, Greek and Armenian can work together for suffering humanity. Fine houses, with broad verandas, ample awnings, airy halls, elegant furnishings, homes of the cultivated and refined, and within a stone's throw of the humble cabin of an Uncle Tom. A race problem, that is accepted as the inevitable, and its ill met with a patience and kindness scarcely believed by them who do not come here to see.

Laws, that welcome the Lotteries banished from Louisiana—that provide a place for a "glove contest" nowhere else possible, and a law that makes the women of this city liable to arrest and imprisonment if found walking in the street after eight o'clock in the evening without male protectors. A city of contradictions, sharp contrasts, pleasant surprises, and strange fascinations.
No snow-piled streets, no slippery sidewalks, no monster in the cellar with insatiable maw, crammed with coal and ever crying for more, no freezing blasts, no bursting pipes, no jingling sleigh-bells, no merry bob-sleds, and alas! no November Club.

SALLIE NELSON.
Jacksonville, Feb. 28, '94.

Fast Day Abolished.

The Salem Gazette speaks as follows
in regard to the abolition of Fast Day:
Friday afternoon, just before adjournment, the Senate passed through its final stage the bill abolishing Fast
Day and erecting April 19 to the position of a legal holiday instead. Its enactment was made without a dissenting voice, and the measure was promptly made a law by the approving signature of Gov. Greenhalge.

The people of the Old Bay State are to be congratulated upon this movement, which, while it may honestly seem to those closely wedded to the old ways as a mistaken one, is really in the interest of religious and moral advancement. For many years the observance of the day for the express purpose which originally established it has been tremendously and pitifully overborne by practices diametrically opposite. In place of "fasting, humiliation and prayer," as enjoined by the statute and emphasized by the Chief Magistrate's proclamation, it has become a day of feasting, fun, and frivolity.
These, well enough in themselves as a needed respite from the many serious concerns which burden the world, are sadly incongruous in the hours set apart for a solemn religious exercise.

Now that this abolition is a fixed fact, the wonder grows that the plain mockery of religion which the law has embodied for such a period had not brought about this action years and years ago. But old customs are tenacious of life, and cling to society through their shadows even after the substance has wholly departed. This is well. A certain admixture of conservative ideas, even to the border-line of "old fogeyism," is valuable as an offset, or at least a dragweight, to a too radical and oftentimes undisciplined progression. This spirit it is which preserves to many of our New England communities the "curfew" or "cover-fire" bell, whose practical significance departed centuries ago, but whose nocturnal charm still captivates the hearts of conservative and radical alike.

Commencing this year, then, we can all unite in patriotic observance of the Nineteenth of April—the anniversary of that great day in American history when the embattled farmers * * * fired the shot heard round the world."
This, the initial combat of that protracted struggle which gave America the inestimable boon of political independence, should not only be a state, but a national, holiday. For in the events of that fateful morning at Lexington, Massachusetts, New England, and the whole broad land have a common and vital interest. The celebration this first year, and each succeeding one, will be such, we feel assured, as shall do ample honor to the historic day and to the grand old Commonwealth as well.

Old Style Spelling.

A subscriber hands us the following interesting clipping from a recent Amherst, N. H. Cabinet:

Mrs. Mary A. Chase has in her possession a letter, written to her grandfather, Daniel Goodwin of Milford, by his wife's father, Ezekiel Potter of Topsfield, Mass., about 101 years ago.
It was sent to Amherst as there was no post-office in Milford. The address on the back of the folded sheet being "To Mr. Daniel Goodwin at Amas." The letter is as follows, and shows for itself, except the substitution of print for the handwriting of the sender: "To in form you that wee all Received your Latrs and glad to hear that you are wael as wee are and your grani mother vary Comfuble and Burpy and wife and Mis Ruth is wall and Sarah wife is wall we are glad that you are Contented and Lick your Plas. Sall has got her gown vary fine woon and our work to-day has been a Ploun the wimen has bin a spinen and wee are gien soper but your grane is gon abrod and we are a waten for her to Com home—and your ant foster has a yone Son about a forten old and we had a old sheep that Codnot stand alone but shee had a lame and I gave it to Burpy and it is as black as a nego—and we all hope That thes Lins will find you wall and wee

Remain your wall wishers
Ezekiel Potter."

March 28 1793

Mrs. G. W. Parker has another letter written by Mr. Potter some three years later, and which is spelled about as well as this. Perhaps when another century has elapsed, and the phonetic system of spelling is brought about, letters that are now written, will be commented upon as much as those written long ago by those who had not then all the privileges that we have.

Proper Citizenship.

Theodore Roosevelt, the civil service reformer and clean politician, writes these patriotic and sensible words to the St. Paul American Citizen, a Catholic publication:

"Every foreigner who comes to this country is in honor bound to become an American citizen—pure and simple, without any qualifications. He has no business to bring into our American political life the questions of Europeans. He is bound not to act as an Irishman or German, Englishman or Scandinavian, but purely as an American. It is an outrage that any one of our political conventions should insert into the party platform planks to catch any division of the foreign vote because it is an outrage that there should be any division of our voters who cast their votes as foreigners. We have nothing to do in our political platform with the rivalry between Germany and France, with the question of home rule for Ireland, or of union for the British empire; all we are concerned with is the question of American politics, and we have the right to demand that every American voter should vote purely with reference to these questions. But if the foreign-born citizen comes over here honestly, and in good faith fills the duties of American citizenship and acts as an American pure and simple, it is most emphatically an outrage to discriminate against him in any way because of his birthplace or his creed."

Mr. Roosevelt's ideas are worthy the thought of every man in the United States. They are broad, logical, true; and the greatest nation on earth ought to prove its greatness by following them out.—Brockton Enterprise.

A Battle for Blood

Is what Hood's Sarsaparilla vigorously fights and it is always victorious in expelling all the food toxins and giving the vital fluid the quality and quantity of perfect health.
Purely vegetable—Hood's Pills—25c.

NIGHTINGALES.

Beautiful must be the mountains whence ye come,
And bright in the fruitful valleys the streams
wherefrom
Ye learn your song
Where are those starry woods? Oh, might I wander there
Among the flowers, which, in that heavenly air,
Bloom the year long.

"Nay, barren are those mountains and spent the streams.
Our song is the voice of desire that haunts our dreams—
A thrice of the heart,
Whose pining visions dim forbidden hopes profound—
No dying cadence nor long sigh can sound
For all our art.

"Alone alone in the raptured ear of men
We pour our dark nocturnal secret, and then
As night is withdrawn
From these sweet springing meads and bursting fountains of May Dream while the innumerable choir of day
Welcome the dawn."
—Robert Bridges.

A Good Word For His Mother-in-law.
A generous lady, hearing of a poor family on Laurel hill, packed a basket and took a supply of money to relieve their wants. She arrived near the location of the house and inquired of several where the poor family lived. Finally she met a man, who said, "I don't know who you are looking for, but my mother-in-law is powerful poor." The generous lady decided to seek no further, and obtaining the address of the mother-in-law she called, found her destitute and relieved her wants.—Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin.

Lincoln's Opinion.

Abraham Lincoln was 6 feet 4 1/2 inches in height. Talking with some friends one day, the subject under discussion was how long a man's legs ought to be. Mr. Lincoln said he had given much thought to the matter and had come to the conclusion that they should be long enough to reach from the body to the ground.—Watchword.

The Living Age.

A question of some moment to the busy man and woman of to-day is, how one may obtain a maximum of the choicest, most valuable reading matter at a minimum of outlay? An acquaintance with Littell's Living Age enables one to answer without hesitation, for it is a magazine exactly suited to their need. Fresh, entertaining, instructive, paying weekly visits, convenient in size, clearly printed, and replete with the choicest gleanings of the foreign literary field, it is the ideal magazine for the families of culture and intelligence.
It needs to be but known to be prized
as one of the best educational influence which can be introduced into the home.

The contents of recent issues will maintain the high average which characterizes its weekly issues. It is published by Littell & Co., Boston, at $3 a year. A specimen copy may be obtained for 15c.

Blaine's Handy Manual of Useful Information.

There has just been published in Chicago a most valuable book with the above title, compiled by Prof. Wm. H. Blaine, of Lancaster University. Its 500 pages are full of just what its name implies—useful information—and we fully advise all our readers to send for a copy of it.
It is a compendium of things worth knowing, things difficult to remember, and tables of reference of great value to everybody, that it has never before been our good fortune to possess in such compact shape. Our wonder is how it can be published at so low a price as is asked for it. It is handsomely bound in flexible cloth covers, and will be sent to any address, postpaid, on receipt of 25 cents in postage stamps, by the publishers,

SEEN IN DIFFERENT LANDS.

CURIOUS EASTER CUSTOMS IN VARIOUS FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Children Hunting For Eggs on Easter Morning—The Festival in Russia—Description of the Ceremonial in Rome. The Day in Siberia.

THE Easter season is full of curious customs in various countries. In Germany Easter nests are made to hold the eggs and many prepared goodies. These nests are made sometimes of twigs and ivy, or gilt and silver leaves, or lace and artificial flowers. Sometimes a basket lined with silk and trimmed with ribbon or anything bright and pretty is used for a nest. Besides the eggs, there are candies and cakes made in odd shapes of people and animals, with marbles, toys and even books. But whatever else is missing, the eggs are always there, and, strange to say, a rabbit—not a hen—is set on top of all. The rabbit is made of pastry or sugar.

On Easter morning the children hunt for the nest, and the first one who finds it cries out, "Oster hase, oster hase!" meaning "Easter rabbit." The finder then distributes the gifts, which are marked with the children's names.

In Paris thousands of people go in holy week to visit "the tombs" erected in the various churches, scenes representing the birth and death of Christ. The figures in these scenes are made very lifelike and are grouped according to the descriptions of the events in Scripture. Many candles and beautiful flowers are used to decorate them.

Eggs play an important part in the Easter festival in Russia. It is estimated that 10,000,000 are used in St. Petersburg alone at that time. It is necessary for all persons to prepare a good stock of decorated eggs for every one, and meeting and greeting an acquaintance to press an egg into the hand. All the eggs have "Christos voskress," "Christ is risen," on them, and generally are decorated.

Besides the eggs, everybody gives a kiss to all of his acquaintances he chances to meet. Not to do so is considered rude.

On Good Friday in each church is placed a representation of Christ's body after death, and as people pass by it they kiss the wounds. Saturday is very quiet. There are no services and no ringing of bells. At midnight the priests appear at their several churches, the song, "Christ is risen from the dead," is heard, the churches are suddenly lighted, and people kneel in groups to receive a blessing. Then the Easter rising begins, and everybody kisses all with whom he has the slightest acquaintance. In St. Petersburg there is a grand illumination with fireworks.

In Siberia people shake hands and present eggs to each other on Easter morning. These eggs are exchanged for other eggs, and so on ad infinitum until the day is over. Men go to each other's houses in the morning and after the greeting, "Jesus Christ is risen." The reply is, "Yes, he is risen," after which the people embrace, exchange eggs and drink brandy.

In the Greek church in Asia Minor the Easter ceremony consists of having a small bier, decked with orange and citron buds, jasmine flowers and boughs, placed in the church, with a crucified Christ rudely painted on a board for the body. Before daybreak a huge bonfire is lighted, singing and shouting indulged in and every honor paid the effigy, accompanied by presents of colored cakes and Easter eggs.

The observances of Easter are especially interesting at Jerusalem, where the event which they commemorate took place. A single mass is celebrated on an altar erected for the occasion in front of the sepulcher, which is in the Church of the Holy Sepulcher. The Patriarch of the Holy Land celebrates it, and he is assisted by members of the Franciscan order. The friars come in a body, and many high officials attend with their retinues. There is always a vast number of pilgrims in Rome during holy week, and among the worshippers one may see Persians, Russians, Albanians, Assyrians, Kurds, Armenians, Egyptians, Abyssinians, Turks, Arabians and all sorts of Europeans. On Good Friday thousands attend a service at Golgotha, which consists mainly of the nailing of an image to a cross, a sermon on the crucifixion, the taking down of the image and its removal to a tomb after being laid on a slab of marble supposed to be the same one on which Christ's body was laid.

In Rome Easter day is the grandest of the year. The Boston Transcript gives this brief description of the ceremonies: "The pealing of cannon ushers in the day, and at an early hour thousands of men, women and children hasten to St. Peter's. The church is newly decorated for the occasion, and around the tomb of St. Peter is a perfect blaze of light. The holy father officiates in person at the high mass. He is borne from the hall of the Vatican to the church seated in his chair of state, carried on the shoulders of his officers. His robes are most gorgeous, and upon his head is the triple crown, which signifies the embodiment in his person of temporal and spiritual power and a union of both. On each side of him and before and behind march men bearing huge fans of ostrich feathers, upon which are painted eyes to symbolize the eternal vigilance of the church. In the church he rests under a rich canopy of silk. After the mass he is borne back to a balcony over the central doorway, where, rising from his chair of state, he pronounces a benediction, with indulgences and absolution."

EASTER EGG FANCIES.

Now an Old Time Custom Has Grown Into an Art.

One of the queer products which an artist has hatched from Easter eggs is a tulip. It is very easy to make, and if touched up with water colors will fill a useful and artistic office as an ash-receiver.

PETULANCE AND PEACE.

The little end of the shell must be broken first and all the contents removed. The edge may then be broken carefully down to about one-quarter of the length of the shell. A stem may be made of twisted green paper and pasted on it at the base. Another device is made by cutting the small end of a shell straight across, pasting on a strip of paper at the side and placing a bit of wood or cardboard underneath. The little cup thus made can be tastefully decorated with either oils or water colors. This is as easily constructed as any and is a rather neat object when carefully finished. A basket made from a good sized eggshell is another novelty. It is not hard to make, but care must be taken in breaking the shell and in cutting it down trim and smooth.

One of the new designs is especially calculated to catch the fancy of masculine juvenility. It is made out of an unbroken egg which has been painted to resemble a swan, and to which a tail of pasteboard and small feathers has been appended. The throat and head can be made either of paper or of a wire around which paper or cloth has been wrapped.

By carefully blowing out the contents of the shell through pinholes and sealing up the holes before adding the head and tail the artificial bird may be made to float on the water like its natural relative in the parks.

One of the Easter devices is very elaborate and a rather pretty trifle in its way. It is simply an egg from which the little end has been cut neatly away, and upon which figures, like those seen in Chinese flowerpots, have been painted. Into the open end small artificial flowers of wax are placed. The whole is to be mounted on a little three legged support of the very light, thin bamboo.

Two other designs are eminently practical in their uses and are not hard to make. One is a matchsafe, and the other, which is painted to resemble a tub and fitted with a pasteboard bottom, may be used to hold matches, pins or other small articles. In making both of these devices considerable caution will have to be used in cutting the shell. After that, however, the work is easy. On any or all of the designs there is great scope for ingenuity, and a cheap box of paints will enable one to make any number of decorations that fancy may suggest.

A Complete Wreck

Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Malaria Distress in the Stomach.

Good Reason For a High Opinion of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. I. Hood &amp; Co., Lowell, Mass."

"Gentlemen—I am willing my statement of the benefit I have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla shall be printed for the good of others. I think I was a complete wreck, as I was suffering from rheumatism, malaria, and had a severe attack of the grip. Before I had used the whole of one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla there was a decided improvement; my stomach in particular being very much better. I had not been able to eat half a cracker without suffering terrible distress. Now I am entirely cured of dyspepsia, have gained 10 lbs., and do the work for 5 in family." Mrs. EMELINE A. ## The main question is How?

How we can make the people who are not familiar with us and our methods understand that it is for their interests to come here when in search of dry goods equivalent for their money. At this season it is especially important that you should be made to realize how much has been done and how much we are still doing to secure for you all the advantages that money and experience can buy.

Another thousand yards of Dress Good Remnants at 50c per yard. Worth $1.

It took weeks of patient toiling, sorting and selecting to enable us to secure and bring to you such a choice collection of faultless styles, styles that are doubly desirable on account of their rarity.

Novelties from over the ocean in abundance and variety—every one a gem.

There is no denying the superior qualities of this assortment, it is the top notch of excellence, the pinnacle of worth, superiority is plainly stamped upon every piece, and yet that question,

HOW?

We'll answer it ourselves. We can make you understand that ours is the newest and best by selling them to your neighbor who has long been aware of the fact that there is no spot in this country or even in the state where better values, fresher goods, newer styles, or better treatment can be obtained.

OUR NEW STORE.

The Andover public is cordially invited to visit our new store which is open for business. While designer and artisan have been busy in producing what some of our friends are pleased to term the handsomest store in New England, we have not been unmindful of its contents, and with a beautiful store we shall take pleasure in showing you a carefully selected stock of Spring Suitings and Furnishings.

The Hotel Movement.

While the formation of a syndicate to purchase the Elm House property is going on but slowly, there is nevertheless, good progress to chronicle as the result as the past week's work. Over $8000 is now subscribed, with promises of sums to add largely to that amount. But what is done must be done at once. If the project is to go, every interested party must do his share. No bonanza can be promised by the promoters, that must be left for the exclusive field of Western investment promoters, but it is very evident that a fair investment will result from money put into this venture.

There is a stronger reason, however, than this why some of our citizens should show an interest in what would do much for our town. Every business man in Andover would be a gainer by the fulfillment of this project. Dollars would come indirectly, if not directly, as a result of a new hotel, and the very ones who are lukewarm in the matter now would get the largest share of the dollars. It would be pleasant to put this on a different ground from that of gain of money, but the spirit of town pride is very minute among some men who have got every dollar of their wealth out of the town, but who now can be approached only by a promise of more, rather than by a desire to repay a little interest on money they have already gained. If the movement fails it will be because that same jealousy and personal feeling that so often interferes with public movements, has been more powerful than local pride or personal duty.

Editorial Cinders.

The grand beginning made last year by our Selectmen in the construction of concrete walks got a little black eye by the reduced appropriation of our recent town meeting. But $500, with the abjurers contributing another $500, will add a good run of it for this year. No town expenditure benefits so many persons as that which provides dry walking.

And speaking of sidewalks, we want to urge to the attention of a few of the present fortunate possessors of good concrete walks, the example of several of our more careful citizens, who during the Spring settling have covered their drives with boards where they are having more or less driving over the concrete. It will prove to be a great big ounce of prevention in the wear of the walks.

Put your thinking cap on and let the committee know of any good idea that may occur to you for the celebration of the town's forthcoming 250th birthday. It should be Andover's "biggest day," and will be if everyone takes the proper interest. Lots of time, but none too much before May 1896.

The B. & M. and the L. L. & H. Street Railway standing toeing a line and calling out to each other "you're another" seems to be the present status of the bridge controversy that compels street railway riders to change cars at the Main Street bridge. Isn't it about time they stopped sparring and fought it out? Andover people think so anyway.

What is news? That which don't happen, we should think, by some of the reports we have recently read of matters relating to Andover as chronicled by some of our contemporaries. The little full-face paragraph at the head of this column is found a pretty reliable weekly self for many to use in testing Andover news.

A half a dozen, more or less, big hats with white and blue crowns and visors are seen daily enveloping as many of our student youths, in regular promenade on our streets. We presume the "L. H." on the visor stands for "Light Head."

Farmer's Club Ceases to Exist.

The Farmer's Club is no more. It ceased to exist at the annual meeting held in the Town House, Monday night. For many years the Club was one of Andover's flourishing organizations, but for the last few years the interest has been dwindling until it hardly seemed worth while to keep it up longer. It had members enough and funds sufficient to keep on but the meetings were very slimly attended and perhaps the Grange, which may be called a farmer's organization, was responsible in some degree for this state of affairs.

Outside of the matter of disbanding, the question as to the disposal of the funds of the club was the interesting topic at Monday night's meeting. The amount of the funds was about $190. Three ways were brought before the meeting for disposing of the money viz, to give it either to the Grange, Memorial Hall Library or for the Public Park. A spirited discussion followed the different propositions and finally it was voted to give half to the Andover Grange and half to the trustees of the Memorial Hall Library.

The Society of Organized Charities.

It will probably be a matter of interest to those who have contributed to the Society of Organized Charities, and to others, to know something of its methods, and by what means it hopes to do better, by co-operation and system, what has hitherto been done by scattered individual effort.

To begin on the side of actual contact with the work, the Society has a corps of Visitors, at the present time twelve in number, whose business it is to acquaint themselves personally with the condition and specific wants of families needing assistance. The information so obtained is taken to headquarters, that is, the Superintendent, Mrs. Walter B. Allen, who is to be found at present every afternoon in the Selectmen's room, between 4 and 5 o'clock, p. m. Recommendations are made by the Visitors in connection with their reports, and the assistance which, after consultation, seems desirable is given through the Visitors.

Cases presenting more or less difficulty and questions of doubtful expediency constantly arise in connection with such work, and for the purpose of dealing with these, as well as for bringing the Board of Directors into contact with the work, a sub-committee of that body meet every Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Allen at the Selectmen's room. Each member of the sub-committee serves for 6 weeks, so that a new one comes in every second week. It is intended that every member of the Board shall take a turn at this part of the work.

The Board of Directors, consisting of thirteen members, with the Rev. Frederic Palmer as chairman, Miss Mary B. Mills as secretary, and Mr. Alfred Ripley as treasurer, has no specified time of meeting, but is called together whenever, in the judgment of the sub-committee and the officers, it seems necessary for the consideration of questions of general policy or for the discussion of specially difficult cases. Behind the Board of Directors is the Society, consisting, according to the last report, of thirty-nine members. The annual meeting of the Society, for the choice of Directors and such other business as may come before it, will be held in May.

It should be added that a record is kept by the Superintendent of all cases reported, and that memoranda of the circumstances of each family and of the amount and kind of assistance afforded are kept on hand for future reference.

One of the chief objects of this Society is to render the families that are ministered to, self-helpful as much as possible, to provide occupation for those who are without, to lift up those who are discouraged, and find the path for those who have fallen into the ditch through bad habits. It is a work presenting many difficulties and discouragements; but it is at the same time a blessed work, one that, if rightly done, blesses him who gives quite as much as him who receives. And, if this new effort to carry out the will of the Master enlists in its behalf the hearty sympathy and earnest co-operation of the community, it is believed that much good may result from it.

The Society desires additional membership. The fee is $1.00 for annual, or $25.00 for life membership. It also solicits contributions of clothing. These can be sent to the home of Mrs. George Ripley. About fifteen families have, thus far, been assisted. Two young boys, and one of them about 17 years of age, desire situations.

$100 Reward, $100.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Abbot Academy Benefit.

The scenes from Kenilworth, and the studies from Greek and Roman sculpture given at Abbot Academy Hall, last Friday evening, make up a very unique as well as delightful entertainment.

Originating in the wish of the Senior Class to substantially increase the funds of the Academy, it was rendered possible on the scale proposed; only through the cordial assistance of the Faculty, and of several interested outside friends. The programme given below, as daintily arranged by Miss Ingalls of the Literature Department and Miss Durfee, teacher of Elocution. Both these ladies, with their well known enthusiasm and interest in whatever is good and beautiful in literature and art, gave unsparingly of their time and strength, and the result must have been as gratifying to them as to the audience who showed their satisfaction by hearty and continued applause.

Home Scene from the Greeks.

At the hour named the curtain parted on each side and showed Miss Marshall beautifully dressed in the white silk and golden garb which befitting one of Queen Elizabeth's court ladies. Bowing gracefully she recited simply and sweetly, the quaint old ballad of Cummer Hall. It is of great interest to all who prize Kenilworth, and love Sir Walter Scott, for he tells us himself that it was the germ of the great novel. It was likewise a very happy idea to have it recited at the beginning of the entertainment, for it gave the key-note to the whole situation.

Then the curtains were drawn wider, and we saw Amy Robsart in the hands of her tiring woman, Janet Foster, preparing for a visit from her lord and husband, the great Earl of Leicester. As Scott describes her, in the magnificent rooms decorated for her by her doting although heartless lover, "You might have searched sea and land without finding anything half so expressive, or half so lovely." Her wreath of brilliants, her milk-white pearls, and her superb green satin gown, taken in connection with her unusual beauty, made her an almost perfect contrast to her precise, sadly-attired but attractive and affectionate maid, Janet Foster. Then when Leicester in all the splendor of a belted Earl illumines the dusky apartment, how fascinating the love with which she greets him and how charming the scene in which she makes him go over the names and titles which arise from the jewelled orders sparkling on his breast.

It is a charming picture when one reads it, how much more charming when seen, and we cannot help wondering if Kenilworth did not have it in mind when in Becket he makes fair Rosamond nestle closer to Henry II. and count over his splendors in the same fashion.

Next, the poison scene, where Anthony Foster signally fails and the rascally Varney signally succeeds in making the wretched Amy drink what all but Janet suppose to be a deadly draught. She, wise maiden that she is, has already administered and antidote, and urges flight on the luckless Amy. Both Varney and Anthony Foster were capitally made up and did their parts well and effectively.

The famous garden scene where Queen Elizabeth discovers the shrinking Amy habited as a nymph, and hiding behind shrubs and statuary was, without doubt, the most beautifully set of any in the play; so numerous were the tall plants and flowers, so artistically managed the lights and carefully calculated space, that real and unreal lost their meaning, and for a little, passion and grief had their own way.

This scene, in addition to the spectacular effect, was beautifully introduced by animated and stirring music telling of mirth and revelry outside, but which gradually changed to a love song, as Queen Elizabeth, a fine, strong figure in her magnificent royal robes, entered with her magnificent train, and subject; dress and gesture proclaimed them; but maid and lover as well, although it was evident from the beginning that while her proud heart would yield to his suit her sagacious Tudor head knows full well that neither love nor marriage accords with her settled plan.

The handsome, impassioned Leicester pleads his cause bravely, but she dismisses him, and walks backwards and forwards thinking over the situation, if not with regret, yet with a tender pathos that makes her not only grand as a queen, but interesting as a woman. Just here she discovers Amy, and the interview between them when one is half distraught and the other with all the hot blood of her race on fire was spiritedly acted. The minor characters here, Shrewsbury, with his shrewd, cool consciousness of the Tudor caprices and the Tudor repentance, rough cousin of Hunsdon who always said his say to his kinswoman, Queen of England though she was, and the curious Court ladies whom the Queen, with characteristic littleness, delighted to baffle, were all picturesque and beautiful.

In the great hall of Kenilworth Castle, with the Queen in her splendid chair of state, with Leicester a disgraced, suppliant before her, with Tressilian eloquently telling the sad and shameful story on his bended knee, and with music of a tragical, dramatic character filling our ears, the drama culminated.

Elizabeth's rage, violent, ungovernable as ever was that of her father, yielded to Lord Burleigh's noble yet tender, almost paternal, "Madam, remember that you are a queen—Queen of England—mother of your people.—Give not way to this wild storm of passion." The reverence for Elizabeth as a queen, the respect for her as the possessor of a mighty intellect and sympathy for her as a woman outraged in her inmost sensibilities, came out finely in these and the subsequent words, all too few for our admiring ears which composed the part of Lord Burleigh.

With another burst of tragic music, the curtain falls upon a tableaux where all the characters, noticeable among whom were the lovely maids of honor and the quaint little page grouped about the majestic figure of their sovereign. Upon the urgent demand of the audience this tableaux was shown again and appeared even more beautiful the second time than the first.

After an intermission, which the audience passed in well deserved praise of actors and accessories, the exquisite figures and scenes from antique art filled the stage. Rhythmic in their movement, graceful in their attitudes, and grand in their simplicity, they affect the beholder as no other spectacle ever does, or ever can.

Between the second and third scenes of the Kenilworth drama, Miss Emerson and Miss Carleton played two movements from a Fantasia in Sonata form by Saran. That its delicate beauty, and the crisp, intelligent manner in which it was executed was appreciated, was proved by the manner in which the audience listened and applauded.

As was hinted in the beginning, in this their most successful undertaking, the class of '94 were generously aided, not only by the Faculty but by many outside friends. First, thanks are due the school and public for the liberal patronage which enabled the class to hire their beautiful costumes and some of the stage settings. Second, the kindness and liberality of Mr. and Mrs. Ripley and Mr. and Mrs. Tyler in lending so great a number of costly and lovely plants, and in permitting the valuable and skilful services of their gardeners, Mr. Palmer and Mr. Langlands, are gratefully recognized. Neither should thanks be omitted to Mr. Palmer and Mr. Langlands themselves, for the interest, the consideration, and the effectiveness of their assistance. Through Mr. Peter D. Smith the Lodge of Free Masons in Andover gave the use of the handsome chair which made so fine a royal throne for the stately Elizabeth. The Masons also lent their swords to figure in the pageant.

The manager of the Andover Press, not only by his taste and personal supervision rendered the programme tasteful and artistic, but by his large and generous discount made it possible to have such a programme at all, and Mr. Carrow of Lawrence lent the luxurious fur robes and rugs which added so much to the richness of throne and floor. To both these gentlemen and to all others who in word and act encouraged and helped, the Class of Abbot Academy, 1894, extend their cordial and hearty acknowledgments and assurance that their kindness and sympathy will never be forgotten.

Communications.

To the Editor of the Townsman:

We, citizens of Andover, and interested in her welfare, wish to call the attention of the public at large to a matter which cannot but be known to the authorities, but upon which no apparent action has been taken, namely: the increasing number of bold, boisterous, and insolent young women who infest our streets after dark. It may not be known to all that they insult and often lay hands upon quiet and decent young men who are attending to their own affairs. These things alone would make a man liable to arrest, and why should they be treated otherwise? But the evil does not stop here. They enter private grounds and carry their insolence to the very windows of houses, calling out to young men by name. If for no other reason, Andover owes enough of her prosperity to Phillips Academy to make it her duty to stop what cannot but have a pernicious effect upon the young men. If the police should make an example of a number of these troublesome offenders, would it not do much to check their operations? This is a matter which should interest every citizen who loves either righteousness, good morals, or good government.

Philo vs. Forum Debate.

Editor of the Townsman:

Being an attentive listener at the joint debate between the Philo and Forum Societies on Tuesday evening last, at Phillips Hall, on the subject "Resolved: That the American Republic is Degrading," I was struck by the strong, forcible, and continued logical arguments brought out by Messrs. Guilford and Branch for the affirmative, and regretted the weak and lame replies of Messrs. Patterson and Gardner for the negative side, especially in the rebuttal, when Patterson produced no new points but spent his time reiterating what he had said in his opening speech for the negative side. In fact, it was a foregone conclusion by many that the affirmative had by far the very best of the argument and had produced the most points, many of which had not been replied to.

In view of such indisputable facts and arguments, it was a great surprise to many, as well as a very unjust decision on the part of the judges that they should have been so unfair as to have given the award to the Forum.

JUSTICE.

An Assault Case.

Bert Brown, who has been employed at Maj. Marland's boarding house since September, was arraigned before Judge Poor yesterday afternoon charged with indecent assault upon Mary Gledhill, 13 year old daughter of William Gledhill. He pleaded not guilty and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $500 for his appearance Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock before Judge Poor. In default of bail he was committed to the Lawrence jail by Officer Frye to await his hearing.

This unfortunate affair took place last Sunday morning between 11 and 11:30 o'clock in the woods in the rear of Mr. Gledhill's home. She went to walk with another small girl and was met by an unknown man. His actions caused the Gledhill girl to scream and struggle, while the other girl ran, crying at the top of her voice. These cries probably frightened him, so that his designs were frustrated and the girl returned to her home in a very frightened condition.

Officers Mears and Frye were at once notified and went to work on the case. Altogether five persons were taken on suspicion, but it was not until the girl was brought face to face with Brown, Wednesday, that she recognized her assailant. Officer Frye at once swore out a warrant and Brown was locked up. He is only 16 years old and belongs in Malden.

Obituary.

Bridget, widow of Maurice Malone, died at the family home on Pearson Street Tuesday night.

Deceased was 78 years old and had lived in this town for over 50 years, during which time she held the respect of all who knew her. She leaves quite a large family. The funeral services were held at St. Augustine's Church this morning. Interment in the Catholic Cemetery.

Death again visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Adams Wednesday taking away Joseph, the youngest child. He was one year and eleven months old. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon. Willie died March 3 of membranous croup and Joseph succumbed to the same disease. The Lawrence Tribune has the following notice of the sad bereavement:

They were bright, pretty children, the pride of their parents and beloved by the neighbors for their endearing qualities. The sympathy of all goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Adams in their sad affliction. Willie is remembered for his beautiful golden locks and rosy cheeks, and Joseph also gave promise of the same lovely features which marked his brother as one of the handsomest children in Andover.

The trouble with most cough medicines is that they spoil the appetite, weaken digestion, and create bile. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the contrary, while it gives immediate relief, assists rather than impairs the assimilative process.

Tried to Steal a Horse, but He Kicked.

It is asserted that a bold attempt was made early this morning to steal the gray horse owned by the Electric Light Company. Anyway he was found loose on the road, and the men familiar with the place claim that it would be impossible for the horse to open the door of the barn himself. Besides, the foot-locks of a man were plainly seen.

It probably has been noticed by many that a kicking strap is used on this horse when he is being driven, and it is said his temper is none too good at times. It is conjectured that he lost his temper at being led away so early in the morning and made decided objections. That a struggle ensued was evident from the appearance of the ground near the barn, and it is still more evident that the horse won the battle.

ABBOTT VILLAGE.

The Burns Club held its last regular meeting Saturday night when an interesting address was given by Joseph W. Smith on "Summer Life on the Maine coast." The Club will wind up the season with a concert and entertainment Saturday evening, March 31. Admission, 25 cents, children 15 cents.

A large number from this village will go to Lawrence in April to hear the famous Scotch tenor, Durward Lely, singing. Peter Robinson who resides here remembers being one of the committee which had charge of an entertainment when Lely made his first public appearance.

Frye Village.

William C. Robinson, son of Joseph Robinson, has bought the black-smithing business of M. A. Turner at South Lawrence and took possession last week. Mr. Robinson has also begun the erection of a new house adjoining the premises of his father.

I Don't Need It.

This is what many people thoughtlessly say when urged by their friends to take a medicine for some slight but growing ailment. The person addressed rests in fancied security, while some powerful disease may be undermining his health. He may pretend not to notice slight troubles, which are very noticeable to friends, or may imagine them to be merely of slight and temporary character. So he keeps putting off taking proper precaution, as thousands have done before, until the disease gains so firm a hold upon the system that a cure is impossible. It is not our desire to cause needless alarm, but merely to call attention to little things which may be the beginning of serious affections, and to suggest the use of a simple medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which will enable you to overcome this insidious enemy, and resist his attacks in the future.

THE KIND THAT CURES

J. H. HERSEY,
Spencer, Mass.
"INDIGESTION
AND Extreme Constipation."
"My Friends Thought I Must Die."

"I AM NOW A CURED MAN."
The following wonderful statement was sent me by C. E. Carpenter, Druggist, 140 Main St., Spencer, Mass.:
"GENTLY—Some ten years ago I commenced to feel 'INDIGESTION' and 'EXTREME CONSTIPATION' caused me to lose flesh very fast. I employed Physicians and tried Sarsaparilla, but continued to grow worse. I had a continuous headache, my skin turned yellow, and my friends thought I must die. My strength left me and courage also. This was my condition last February when I commenced to take DANA'S
SARSAPARILLA
Before the first bottle was gone, there was a great improvement. My friends wanted to know what caused such a change in me. I replied 'DANA'S SARSAPARILLA.' I am now taking my third bottle and consider myself at the age of 50, after Doctors had said, a 'CURED MAN.'
Yours respectfully, J. H. HERSEY.
No. 40 Main St., Spencer, Mass."

Easter Services.

Next Sunday being Easter there will be some special services at the different churches, as well as decorations and appropriate music. At Christ Church the order for the day's exercises is as follows: Holy Communion, 7.30, 11.70 A.M.; morning service at 10.30 A.M.; children's service with baptism 4.30 P.M.

Besides the regular services at the South Church, the Sunday School will hold its Easter concert at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

At the Free Church the services will begin at 10.30 with sermon by the pastor, followed by the regular session of Sunday School. In the evening at 8 o'clock, the usual Easter concert will be given, and the Y. P. S. C. E. meeting will be at 7.

There will be a Sunday School concert at the Baptist Church Easter Sunday at 7 P.M. In the place of an address the pastor will tell an Easter parable. A collection will be taken at the close of the service for the benefit of the Baptist Home for missionaries' children at Newton Centre.

BALLARD VALE.

Mr. James E. Dugdale will leave town early next week to take a position in Concord, N. H. Mr. Dugdale's many friends will wish him prosperity in his new venture.

Paul Hannegan has completed the foundation for his new building at Lowell Junction. The frog-pond between his building and the depot will probably be filled in by the railroad company.

A "Poverty Party" was held by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Union Church Wednesday evening in the vestry of the church. The general appearance of the party was in keeping with the spirit of the times, and patches and darts were the most striking characteristics of the different costumes. Appropriate prizes were given those presenting the most dilapidated appearance. After the review of the company by the judges, games and social conversation were enjoyed until the time arrived to go home.

A wedding which interested all of the young people and a great many of the older ones was solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Orell Ashton on River St., when Miss Millicent M. Farrell, youngest daughter of Mrs. Hannah Colburn, of Lowell, was united in marriage to William E. Matthews, of town. The bride was charmingly attired in a pretty dove colored gown trimmed with pale blue silk and gold braid, she also wore a corsage bouquet of bride's roses and maiden-hair fern. Miss Nellie Matthews an bridesmaid wore a dress of cream-colored tulle. Chester Matthews was groomsmen. Rev. Mr. Evans performed the ceremony.

None but relatives were present and included members of the family from Worcester, Manchester, N. H., Berlin, Mass., Lawrence and elsewhere. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews departed on the 9.40 train for a short trip. On their return they will occupy Mr. Ashton's house on River street. They were the recipients of many handsome silver gifts, including fifty dollars in gold from Mr. Matthews' parents, twenty dollars in gold from Mr. Matthews' masonic friends, a silver service from the Y. L. P. U., many other gifts in silver, glassware and linen, betokening the esteem in which they are held by many friends whose good wishes will follow them in their matrimonial career.

An Easter Display.

Among the Easter displays in Lawrence none has excited greater credit perhaps than the Easter window of L. C. Moore & Co. It is strikingly original, indicative of the push and energy which characterizes this firm. The display is of artificial blue and white violets, which form a central mound, entwined in which are miniature electric lights within colored globes, which greatly enhance the effect. Surrounding this central mound are flowers, palms, calla and Easter lilies, giving a living appearance to this beautiful picture. The lace window at the opposite end of the store also commands more than ordinary notice. Here are represented laces from many different European countries where lace weaving is a high art.

Inside the appearance is just as pleasing, but the ladies probably would be attracted at once to the millinery department which is said to be beautiful with charming hats and rich trimmings, one of the best millinery displays in the city.

Hetty Green as a Belle.

While credit must be given Mrs. Hetty Green for wonderful shrewdness and business sagacity in building up her fortune, it must not be forgotten that she had a good start. When her father died, he left her $9,000,000 to fight the battle of life with. It was more money in those days than it is now. He was an old whaler and shipping merchant of New Bedford named Edward Mott Robinson. He married a Miss Howland, and the full name of Mrs. Hetty Green is Harriet Howland Robinson Green.

She was her father's private secretary for four or five years before his death, and in this way she acquired a knowledge of business matters. Old Robinson was frugal and economical to extremes, and among the lessons early impressed upon the daughter's mind were economy and simplicity in daily life and the value and virtue of money.

Before the war began Mrs. Green, at that time Miss Hetty Robinson, the belle, spent several winters in New York and was almost a belle in society. She had considerable beauty of a robust sort, and her family and fortune were certainly irreproachable.

She lived for a time in a boarding house on West Twenty-second street, and when she went to parties would walk from there. It is related that rather than pay cab fare she used to pull a pair of heavy stockings over her stout shoes and tramp through the snow to a reception or ball, pulling the stockings off when she arrived and spreading them out somewhere to dry.—New York World.

Thought He'd Need Them.

"When I first visited Kansas City some years ago," said Manager Tom Davis, "I found on the table in my room at the best hotel a box of poker chips. I had just come from a trip through New England, where a Bible is almost invariably a standard piece of furniture, and this new layout rather staggered me. I called a bellboy and told him somebody had forgotten his poker chips."

"That's all right, mister," said he. "They belong here."

"I thought perhaps somebody forgot to take 'em' away after last night's game," said I.

"No, indeed," says he. "Chips and clean towel goes with every room."

"Then he looked at me curiously a moment and said he guessed I'd need 'em."

"I said I guessed not."

"You don't look like a preacher man," says he.

"I'm a circus man," said I.

"He nearly fainted."—New York Herald.

Some Old Trees.

In the park of Tortworth court, Gloucestershire, the seat of Lord Ducie, is the celebrated Spanish chestnut, which is said to have been the first tree that was ever planted in Great Britain by man. This chestnut is now over 19 feet in diameter and was an old tree in the reign of Stephen. The Darley yew of Derbyshire is about 1,850 years old, while the Ankerwyke yew, near which the Magna Charta was signed, is about 1,100 years old; the yews of Fontaine abbey existed at its founding, some 760 years ago; the yew tree of Fortingal churchyard is said to be the oldest tree of its kind in the world, and the Greendale oak of Welbeck, through which in 1734 a way was cut and a carriage and four driven through, is about 1,800 years old.—London Million.

A THOUGHT OF THE RESURRECTION.

The bulbs that were hid in the darkness
Through the winter time and the snow
Have felt the thrill of the sunlight
Their hour to bloom they know.
Purple and gold and scarlet
And white as the robes of a king,
To the glory of love at Easter
Their beautiful wealth they bring.

The grass that was brown and withered
And cold on the sodden plain
Has been kissed by the tender sunshine,
Cared for by the crystal rain,
And its bright green lances quiver,
Let twice ten millions strong,
And the bird, with her nest among them,
Flies up with a sudden song.

And we, who have seen our darlings
Rift from our side away;
Who have wept in silent anguish
O'er the cold and pulseless clay,
Take heart in the Easter gladness,
A parable all may read,
For the Lord who cares for the flowers
Cares well for our greater need.

He knows of the loss and anguish,
The grope of the stricken soul.
He will bring again our dear ones,
By his touch of life made whole,
We shall need and know and love them
In the spring beyond the sea,
That, after earth's dreary winter,
Is coming to you and me.

—Mrs. M. E. Sangster.

EASTER IN MINGIN'S ALLEY.

BY KATE JORDAN.

(Copyright, 1894, by American Press Association.)

"Is this Mingin's alley?"
"Yes, that it is."
"Does Mrs. Terry Mason live here?"
"She do. Jest beyant that fus' dure, one flight up, back, ye'll find her."
"Thank you."

They stood at the entrance to the alleyway, so chill, so damp this cloudy day of early spring—an old woman in a shabby quilted bonnet, a market basket on her arm, her seamed, flabby face fairly quivering with curiosity, and a footman in dark green livery, as carefully groomed as the master who sent him.

He certainly was an unusual sight in Mingin's alley—so unusual indeed that old Mrs. Ryan could scarcely get her breath back as she looked after him.

"Well, well, well! Upon me wurd, but that's ails, I must say! Mrs. Terry Mason'll 'ould her yaller head a little higher than ever now that she has a laddy buck like that comin with letters to see her. Oh, my, but this is a wicked wurd! Who is Mrs. Mason anyway, and who does such an airish young piece live in Mingin's alley, and where's her husband, and who do the loikes o' that futman come after her? Faith, I have me doubts about these aisy going, soft voiced, standoffish sort of people! Divil a drop o' whisky would she take wid me avin on the blessed Christmas day! No use tryin to be frindly with the loikes o' her. She's got too many frinds among the upper tin not fit to look an honest woman in the face, I'll be bound, if the thruth was told! Well, well, what'll Mrs. Minchey say to this whin I see her at the market?"

It was a choice bit of news, and Mrs. Mary Ann Ryan of Mingin's alley looked forward to retelling it over a glass of whisky, just as Miss Manhattan at 8 o'clock tea rattles the skeletons her absent friends think hidden.

Meanwhile the footman went on, gingerly picking his way over the muddy pavement, until he came to the door in the small rear house to which he had been directed.

It was still wintry and cold in the passageway, but when the door was opened to his knock there was something spring-hopelessly lame, his tiny crutch the very saddest thing he had ever seen.

He stood for a moment looking from the downcast head of his young mother to the footman's now impassive face.

"You made her cry," And the flaxen curls fell in a tossing angry mass over his accusing eyes. "You're a bad man. You made her cry—deliberately!"

He hobbled to his mother's side, forced her head up with his mites of hands and looked inquiringly at her white face.

"Mammy, tell Ted," he whispered. "Oh, my darling," and she flung her arms around him, "if we could both die!

If you and I, Ted, could just find rest. It's a sorry old game, this life, dear. It's a cold, horrid, old world, my baby. I begin to think there isn't room for us here."

She kissed him on the lifted baby brow, closed her dry lips, and replacing the letter in its envelope handed it to the footman.

"Take that back," she said in an icy, level tone.

"What answer, madam?"
"No answer. Just take it back."
"But Mr. Trevelyan!"

"Go. Tell my father—tell Mr. Trevelyan," she said, hurriedly correcting herself—"that I cannot answer it as I would if he stood here before me."

"He must come himself, madam."
"And the way I would answer it is this: I'd tear it to bits and cast them in his merciless face!"

Long after the door had closed upon the footman she sat there, white, silent, unmindful even of Ted's furtive caresses and tender questioning. She seemed to see the words of that cruel letter still before her—yes, every sentence was burned on her brain:

Your note of appeal reached me when I arrived here from San Francisco on a trip around the world. You are weak, you say, and poor. You ask me for help. You say you would not do this but for your child's sake—that if you cannot work he must starve. I have considered the matter, and I have decided to give you one more chance. The facts of the case are these:

You married Terry Mason against my expressed threats. He was the son of the twenty man I hated, one who tried to ruin me financially and socially for reasons I need not state here. I told you that if you clung to your absurd infatuation for Terry Mason you lost your father forever. Perhaps you thought I did not mean it. I did.

However, Terry Mason is dead. Come back, then, if you will, and I'll receive you, give you a home, but his child I will never permit to live under my roof. Send him to the beggarly relatives his father has bequeathed to him or put him in some institution where he can be paid for. Do as you please about that. He cannot live with me—and, more than that, you must drop the "Mason" and be my daughter again, in name and in spirit. There must be no reminders of your sorry past. For your immediate need I inclose $50.

J. M. TREVELYAN.

"The money would have scorched my fingers!" the girl muttered. "And yet, oh, how I wish I might have kept just a few dollars to buy something for Ted for Easter—poor darling!"

What fancies passed before the young widow's sad, blue eyes, what pictures of the past!

She saw herself so happy as a girl at Trevelyan House, her father's ancestral home in England. She saw Terry Mason, who had won her heart the very first time she had met him, during the London season. She saw herself so happy, so happy with him during their short honeymoon together—happy, despite her father's estrangement and bitter words.

But the happiness had died so soon. She thought of one sunny April morning when they were in the Alps, a few months before Ted was born. Terry had gone up one of the mountains with a party of men. His last words still echoed in her ears:

"Don't worry, Mildred, dear. I'll be back before you are up in the morning." Ah, death had its shadow over him even as he spoke! He never came back.

Into one of the treacherous crevasses that lurk in the still, white depths of the eternal snows he had disappeared. His companions, reaching the top, had called and waited for him in vain. Search parties sent out had returned without a hope. The earth had literally swallowed him and with it all Mildred's joy in life.

Yet—not all—for when Ted was born—poor, pretty, crippled Ted, with his eyes like the sky that arched the peaks of snow—there was something to live for. Money went, ill luck came like a shadow that persistently kept pace with her, but her love for Ted grew stronger with sickness and disappointment.

Like so many other hapless ones, she had eventually drifted to America, the land of promise, but it had brought no fulfillment to her. What weary years of struggle had passed, yet she had been brave, had fought the fight alone, and no prayer for help had reached the iron-willed master of Trevelyan House.

But just a week before this Eastertide she had seen her father step from his carriage into one of the hotels on Fifth avenue. This was her first intimation that he was in New York. An irresistible impulse had led her to appeal to him for Ted's sake. Despair was the result.

"Oh, is this all of life?" was her dreary protest on this Easter Thursday as she listened to the slow, silvery notes of a church bell drifting over the battered rooftops that crowded Mingin's alley.

"Is this all, dear Ted?"

But Ted, leaning his elbow in his frayed sleeve upon her knee, only shook his yellow curls and looked with wondering eyes into hers.

The next morning, after a breakfast of dry bread and suspiciously bluish milk, Ted was left alone. Mildred had gone to seek a position in one of the big shops, a quest she had started on daily for almost a month, while her small hoard of savings was decreasing with terrifying rapidity.

Ted was used to being left alone, but this morning he was restless. The memory of his mother's tears the day before seemed to burn his baby heart. His wooden horse didn't amuse him, he couldn't find any interest in his tiny reading book nor prepare his spelling lesson of one syllable words for his mother by the time she came back. He just sat with his crutch across his knee, thinking.

Suddenly his eye caught sight of a tattered newspaper on the table. It had come around the bread that morning. Was that a picture he saw upon it—a picture of a big man harnessed to a of eggs and driven by a little cherub unlike himself?

Ted took the paper and spread it out on his knees. It was, in fact, the children's page of a daily paper. He liked the hen and the eggs. How he wished he might have a candy egg for Easter Sunday, as he had had when times were better the year before!

But he was a philosopher in his small way, and he put the tempting thought aside.

Nevertheless the page interested him, and he began spelling out this conspic-

TED'S LETTER.

ously printed notice in a loud, hissing voice: "Easter gifts for the children. Send your name and address to The Trumpet office, Broadway."

Ted's cheeks flushed; his eyes almost started from his head. He seized the little crutch and ticktocked over to where he kept his schoolbooks and a stubby pencil. After an hour's hard work the following letter was completed on a page of his copybook:

Dear trumpet office—I am Ted seven year old next joon and I want a gift, my mama erred hard yestday she has no money for gifts a letter came that was horrid, a man with buttons brot it, I am lam but I don't min that I was borned that way, do please send a gift my papa is ded I gess that makes mama sad, so please send the gift to Ted in mingins alley yor true friend
TED.

Posting the letter was an easy matter, for when Sophie, the little German girl, came up stairs he gave her explicit directions about sending it at once.

Not a word did Ted say to his mother about this venture of his, and his cheeks were very red when he went to sleep that night, his first secret weighing most importantly on his heart.

It was Easter eve, and the city editor of The Trumpet was very busy.

Among his letters was one in a very cheap and rather soiled envelope, the address written on it in a hand that was ludicrously babyish.

"This is from one of the kids about the Easter gifts," he said, with a smile. "How in thunder did it stray among my papers? I'm afraid it's too late now—yes, for it's almost 11, and the children's editor is gone."

But when he had waded through little Ted's scrawl there was a mist over his eyes. He thought of his three boys at home, and he determined that this little chap should have an Easter gift if he had to fetch it himself.

Folding the letter, he looked hurriedly around the room.

There was a man busily writing at a desk near by. He was the assistant editor, a young Englishman but lately engaged by the paper.

"See here, King, I've got a job for you."

He showed Ted's letter.

"Sad, isn't it? It may be a fake, but I want you to go and find out. It's too late to touch it tonight, but go, like a good fellow, the first thing in the morning. Here are a few dollars, and you'll find some of those painted eggs we sent out to the children in the desk there."

"What's the name?" asked King, his sad, vacant eyes glancing down the page. "H'm, the little chap has forgotten to put anything but 'Ted.' However, I dare say 'Ted of Mingin's alley' will find him. Have you ever noticed what little royalists children are? Their signatures are kingly. One name is quite sufficient, they think, to distinguish them from all other mortals. He probably supposes there is only one Ted in the world."

"You know where Mingin's alley is—the place where they found Ridel, the anarchist, hiding—a sad, poverty stricken hole."

"Yes, I remember. I'll go in the morning."

King went back to his desk. The light above him shone on his stern young face, the hair strangely white around the brows.

When the city editor was gone, and the place was almost quiet, he threw down his pen and clasped his hands to his burning head. How the old pain racked him tonight—the surging, the humming, the vertigo that seemed as if some day it would surely drive him mad again.

Again!

He was almost afraid to think the word, lest in some way it reach the minds of the men he heard laughing in the other room.

What would they say if they knew he had been mad—the inmate of a madhouse for years? Now they spoke of him as a man who had suffered much—that was evident from the settled sadness of his clouded eyes—and who was strangely reticent about his origin, his past.

What would they say if they knew that to him there was no past—that beyond his first conscious hours in the Swiss madhouse he knew nothing?

Dismal thoughts—terrible, penetrating loneliness. How his soul was tortured! But worse even than this poignant pain was the feeling that often beset him when he awoke just at the edge of day, just as the gray light of dawn was stealing over the sluggish world, a feeling that his consciousness was trembling on the brink of a discovery—that a great joy or a great sadness would be his in that flood of light.

But it did not come, and the cloud did not lift from his eyes.

Easter morning dawned fresh, crystal clear. The sky was a tremulous azure; the fragrance of trumpet shaped lilies hung in the velvet air; the church bells pealed out gladly; the streets were thronged with people who seemed un-troubled by a care.

To the city editor's gift King had added a bunch of white flowers, and feeling the happy consciousness that he was going to make one small boy happy made his way to the dreariness of Mingin's alley.

As fate decreed, he met old Mrs. Ryan about to sally to church in her Sunday bonnet.

"Will you tell me, please, if a little boy lives in this alleyway named Ted?" King asked.

"Well, upon me wurd!" and Mrs. Ryan tossed her head. "It's Ted now, is it! And yesterday it was a futman that ud dazze the eyes of ya. Oh, yis, ye'll find Ted and his mother, too, I'll warrant—an airish piece—jes' beyant that fus' dure, one flight up, back. Upon me wurd, wid such callers on Ted and herself she'll be havin barooches stoppin here nixt. H'm!" And with these charitable remarks Mrs. Ryan pursued her self righteous, self satisfied way to church.

Outside the door to which he was directed King paused.

Dare he venture in? There was grief beyond that door. He heard a woman's weeping voice, a child's short, heart-broken sobs.

"Oh, Ted, Ted, Ted, what shall we do! Oh, the cruelty of the world! There, there, dear, I'm selfish to make you weep. I'm a bad mammy. Still I don't trouble you a care."

M. Hammerly, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."

like about the interior of the little room revealed and about the girl who stood there pale, wide-eyed, silent.

She was only a girl—Mrs. Terry Mason—as far as looks went, for her figure was slender and youthful, and her sweet face was of the ethereal, blond type that always seems childish. In reality she was 23. In suffering she often felt about 102.

"Mrs. Terry Mason?" and the footman lifted his hat respectfully.

"Yes," her dry lips murmured. "A letter for you, madam."

"Come in," she said, and with the grace of one gently bred she sank into a wooden chair, the letter fluttering with a rustle like a dead leaf in her fingers.

The footman looked around the room. He knew he would be asked questions concerning it, so he noticed it particularly. It was very clean, the bare floor scrubbed to an astonishing whiteness, a crisp bit of muslin in a big grill upon the shining window, a red geranium nodding its bright head against it, and a little chubby boy, with steady, inquiring blue eyes, sitting in a high wooden chair, playing with a painted horse.

"Hello," said the little fellow, nodding his head. "I'm Ted. Who're you? And where did you

NEALDOW HONORED

Portland's Citizens Turn Out to Pay Their Respects.

Hundreds Were Unable to Get Into City Hall—The Old World and the New Unite in Paying Tributes of Respect.

PORTLAND, Me., March 21.—Portland, the home of the venerable prohibitionist, General Neal Dow, celebrated his 90th anniversary by turning out almost en masse and packing city hall to its utmost capacity. Never before in the history of the city has such a crowd of representative citizens assembled to pay honor to one of her sons.

Fully 6000 people were present and hundreds were turned away from the doors, unable to gain entrance. The hall was magnificently decorated and the platform was occupied by children and grandchildren of Neal Dow, many prominent citizens, clergymen and representatives from all New England.

The appearance of General Dow was the signal for an outbreak of applause which continued for fully five minutes. Mayor Baxter presided. Rev. C. F. Allen offered prayer, after which ex-Governor Seiden Connor spoke for a few minutes in a congratulatory manner.

Rev. Matt Shugart delivered a stirring address. His mention of Thomas B. Reed, Longfellow, Francis E. Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, and Neal Dow, inaugurator of prohibition, all of whom are sons of Portland, was received with cheers. A portrait of General Neal Dow was presented by the W. C. T. U. of the world to the state of Maine. It was received in behalf of the state by Governor Henry B. Cleaves, who spoke briefly.

After an address by Mrs. Clara C. Hoffman of Missouri and reading of telegrams and messages from contemporary meetings, and from prominent men all over the world, General Dow, erect of body and strong of voice, spoke for some minutes, urging Maine people to stand by Maine law.

The state board of trade in session here last night passed resolutions of congratulation on Neal Dow's anniversary.

Of Socialistic Tendencies.
BOSTON, March 21.—Four thousand workmen attended a rally in Faneuil hall last night to hear labor leaders discuss the problem of the unemployed. The socialistic element was apparent. Politics, the governor, the mayor, non-union men and capitalists formed the line attacked. The speakers urged organization as the best remedy to meet the needs of the unemployed. The names of Governor Greenhalge and other prominent men were hissed.

New Crew Furnished.

GEORGETOWN, Mass., March 19.—A new crew to the identity of the murdered man found in the brook March 1 has been found. Officer Hall learned from George Nelson of Boston that a person answering the description of the murdered man worked and boarded with him during the months of December and January and left his house about Feb. 1. While there he said repeatedly that he was in trouble over some woman.

Set Fire to a Church.

LYNN, Mass., March 22.—There is no more a mystery connected with the fire which nearly destroyed the Methodist meeting house on Boston street last Sunday. John Edward Starratt and William Warren, two boys, confessed their crime to the police after having been arrested on suspicion. They allege that an unknown man incited them to the act and that they acted under compulsion.

A Deadlock.

LOWELL, Mass., March 21.—The city council in joint convention took 20 ballots for city treasurer to succeed Austin E. Chadwick, resigned, without a choice. John H. Harrington, Democratic candidate, receiving 16 votes, and Walter M. Sawyer, Republican, 15, with one vote for John J. Burns, another Democrat, who would not withdraw and allow Mr. Harrington's election.

Miss Barnaby Is Guardian.

PROVIDENCE, March 21.—Miss Maud Barnaby has been appointed guardian of Florence B. Conrad and J. B. B. Conrad, the two children of John H. Conrad of Denver, according to the will of Mrs. J. B. Barnaby, for whose murder Dr. Graves was convicted. Miss Barnaby furnished her $20,000 bond last evening.

Preparing For Business.

HARTFORD, March 21.—A meeting of the representatives of the new Connecticut Baseball league was held here yesterday and arrangements made for opening the season. President Powers of the Eastern league has modified the constitution of the Eastern league for the use of the State league.

Keepers Withdrawn.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 22.—The Newport Elastic Fabric company made a satisfactory arrangement with the East Hampton rubber works, and has again obtained possession of the works from keepers. One hundred hands will resume work Monday.

Widow Claims It All.

PROVIDENCE, March 22.—By the death of John W. Attwood a sensational court case is expected to materialize by the claim of the widow for the entire estate valued at $50,000. A brother of the deceased will fight the case.

Held For the Grand Jury.

BOSTON, March 22.—Langdon W. Moore, the noted criminal, was arraigned yesterday on the charge of assault with intent to kill John H. Foster. Moore waived examination and was held in $1000 for the action of the grand jury.

A Warning.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 21.—Police inspectors were sent out last night with orders to notify all wholesale liquor dealers to stop business and keep their teams off the streets. If wagons are sent out drivers are to be arrested.

Convicted of Manslaughter.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 21.—Mrs. Florence Hawley, charged with the murder of Mary L. Munson in Shelton, two years ago, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Sentence was deferred.

They Favor Davis.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 30.—Ex-Mayor Carroll was nominated by the Democrats for state senator last night. Six men were named for representatives. They favor ex-Governor Davis for United States senator.

RHODY'S DEMOCRATS

Unanimously Renominate Their Entire State Ticket.

PROVIDENCE, March 21.—The Democratic state convention was remarkable for the presence of most of the leaders and prominent men of the party. Temporary Chairman Augustus S. Miller said the state was in a crisis and was not living under the constitution, but he hoped the wrong would soon be righted. He denounced the McKinley bill and the evils which he alleged had followed it, the Sherman silver bill and its results and the A. P. A. movement. He also referred at length to the alleged steal of the state by the Republicans.

The roll of the convention was then made up, and the temporary organization was made permanent.

A committee on platform was appointed, and then the convention proceeded to nominate the state ticket. The old ticket was named entire by R. B. Comstock, as follows:

Governor, David S. Baker of North Kingstown.

Lieutenant governor, Dalton E. Young of Newport.

Secretary of state, John J. Heffernan of Woonsocket.

Attorney general, Clarence A. Aldrich of Providence.

General treasurer, John G. Perry of South Kingstown.

They were seconded by Hugh J. Carroll and were separately and unanimously made the nominees of the convention.

John J. Heffernan, who was nominated for the position of secretary of state against his wishes, said that he would have been willing to run if it had not been for his poor health, but as he had been nominated, notwithstanding his letter of withdrawal, he would consider the matter and would report to the state central committee at the next meeting.

BONUS OF $100,000

Asked by Bath Iron Works From the City of New London.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 20.—A proposition has been made public on behalf of the Bath (Me.) iron works, regarding which there have been conferences between officials of that company and representatives of the city. The proposition from Bath is that they be paid $100,000 to reimburse them for losses sustained in sacrificing real estate in Bath and the cost of moving; that New London people take $150,000 in bonds of the company; that the New London and Northern Railroad company give them land and water frontage which they selected, and that it be filled in at actual cost.

Other considerations in the way of low taxes, water rates and additional land are included. In return for these concessions they are to establish a plant costing $400,000. It is doubtful if this offer will be accepted. No action has been taken on it as yet. Opinion is against the $100,000 bonus.

Strikers Making Trouble.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 21.—Since the Washington mill attempted to run on Tuesday the police have been kept busy protecting those who have gone back to work. Last night 1500 strikers gathered at the mill gates, and trouble being feared the entire police force of the city was stationed at the gates. On the appearance of the workers' cries of "Scabs" filled the air and stones flew. A riot was prevented with difficulty.

State Prison For Life.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 22.—Jose Velaz Sarmiento, the Portuguese who shot his sweetheart, Maria Dascandias, at New Bedford on June 9 last, was brought into the superior court yesterday, and, retracting his plea of not guilty to an indictment for murder, pleaded guilty of murder in the second degree. Sarmiento was sentenced to state prison for life, one day of which is to be in solitary.

BOSTON, March 22.—George B. Melledew's two widows are contesting the payment of $8000 life insurance. Wife No. 1, Mrs. Jane E. Lord, was married to him in England in 1855. The other wife married Melledew in this city in 1883. Wife No. 1 and her daughter are contesting the payment of the policy to No. 2, despite the fact that in 1885 wife No. 1 had remarried.

Death of Hungary's Patriot.

TURIN, March 21.—Léopold Kosuth died at 10.55 o'clock last night. Kosuth's end was extremely painful. He showed signs of consciousness until the last. He expired in the arms of his son, and died pressing the hand of the Hungarian deputy, Karolyi. The members of his family and a few of his intimate friends stood around the bedside of the expiring patriot.

Tourists Bled by Mexicans.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 22.—The Two Republics contains a strong protest from United States Consul General Crittenden for the charge of $10,000 made for embalming the body of Miss Lella Sherman of an excursion party. The consul general thinks the general way in which tourists are bled is a matter requiring remedy.

Trolley Lines For Hartford.

HARTFORD, March 20.—The common council passed the resolutions empowering the two street railway companies to build and equip trolley lines. The Hartford company, which heretofore refused to pay a 3 per cent tax, accepted the city's terms, which the Hartford and West Hartford company did some weeks ago.

Higher Wages Will Come Later.

CANTON, Mass., March 22.—The striking spinners and winders of the Eureka Silk company, who resisted a reduction of 10 per cent, have returned to work on the terms proposed by the company. They were given the assurance that when business improved the corporation would restore the old wages.

Cushman of Lawrence, who as Miss Marcia Van Cott Blakely so delighted her audience on the occasion of a recent entertainment with her pure, rich voice. There will also be singing by the choir and addresses by Revs. Thomas Tyrie of Lawrence, J. Mason of Lawrence, and Revs. Charles Noyes and H. E. Barnes of town. Hon. N. P. Frye will preside. Admission 25 cents.

Mr. George L. Harris states that the circumstances of a burglary at the Wardwell farm, Stevens Village, was reported to him Saturday morning. It appears that a stock of shoes, the property of Mr. Henry Schreder, had been taken from a wagon left the night before in a barn at the farm. It was the work, probably, of some person who noted the fact of the gentleman having left the goods in a place convenient for their action. Mr. Harris referred the owner to Inspector Libbey of Lawrence, as thieves would not be likely to dispose of the property in the town. The value of the property stolen, which included three boxes of German shoes, is about $150.

Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock Mr. S. D. Hinman found a wagon loaded with household goods and a horse detached therefrom and abandoned in a field, near Sargeants Court. Unable to find any claimant, Chief of Police Robinson was notified and the property was placed under cover in Sargeants' stable. Later it was found that the cart and horse belonged to a man named John Shea, Lawrence, who loaned it for the purpose of transferring goods from Amesbury to Lawrence. The teamster however in his confusion or bewilderment unfortunately abandoned his charge on his arrival here. He was sent the next morning to claim and pay the charges accruing.

The following programme of music has been prepared for Sabbath morning at the Congregational Church: Organ prelude, Dubois; Easter carol, G. W. Chadwick; responses, A. J. Holden; "Awake Thou that Sleepest," A. J. Holden; "Alleluia, Christ is Risen," Chas. Dennee; hymns by congregation; organ postlude, finale to Third Symphony Mendelssohn. It is expected that a chorus of children will sing in the evening.

Musical Club Entertains.

Friday evening was set apart by members of the Musical Club for the delectation of its friends. The pretty parish rooms of St. Paul's Society, utilized for the occasion, were particularly adapted for the purpose, and the place was meet for the rendering of an enjoyable and well selected programme. The artists revealed their devotion to and acquaintance with the muses in the following numbers:

Beethoven,	5th Symphony-Allegro-Presto
Miss Manning,	Miss Stillings.
Raff,	Value Favorite
Miss Marston.
Nevin,	One Spring Morning
Miss Sanborn.
Brewer,	Sacred Duo
Miss Saunders, Mr. Butterworth.
Schubert-List,	Der Lindenbaum
Miss Stillings.
Rubenstein,	Value Caprice
Miss Saunders, Mr. Stevens.
Haydn,	With Verdure Clad
Mrs. Hathorn.
Moszkowski,	Value Brilliant
Miss Saunders.
Mendelssohn,	Lift Thine Eyes
Mrs. Hathorn, Miss Saunders, Mrs. Butterworth.
Schubert,	Impromptu
Mr. Stevens.

Among the selections which invited the especial admiration of the audience and caused those rendering them to courteously respond were Mrs. Hathorn's selection from Haydn, the encore being Reynold De Koven's Lullaby song, and the rendition of Schubert's Impromptu by Mr. Stevens, who responded with Nevins' Shepherd song. Rubenstein's Value Caprice by Mr. Stevens and Miss Saunders was also a number of marked interest. Mr. Stevens' erect and graceful position when seated at the piano is a pleasing accompaniment to his musical ability.

At the conclusion of the exercises light refreshments were served and general conversation followed. Cut flowers and potted plants decorated the room.

Manager to Retire.

Mr. Eben Sutton, the present agent and manager of the North Andover Mills property, expects to retire from that position about the middle of April, when the control will be assumed by Mr. John H. Sutton of the Great Falls Woolen Co., who it is understood will continue the manufacture of about the same class of goods.

Mr. Eben Sutton, after graduating from Harvard with the class of '85, entered the office and became interested in the business of manufacturing with his father, General Eben Sutton. In July of 1887 he became agent of the North Andover Mills, and during the past six years has made many improvements and added largely to the capacity of the plant. Mr. Sutton has made no plans for the future and has not yet decided whether he will continue the manufacture of woolen goods elsewhere, or engage in other business. He intends to reside in Boston until he has settled upon what course to pursue. He has found many things pleasant and attractive while engaged in business at his old North Andover home, and for several reasons is rather sorry to leave. He reports an increase in trade just at present, which may continue for a month or six weeks, but fears that it is not to be continuous.

A Flourishing Colony.

Bradstreet Colony, U. O. P. F., seems to be rapidly increasing its number of friends, each succeeding open session or social evening serving to wonderfully increase the gathering. Tuesday evening Governor Thornton presided over a programme which included many meritorious and popular selections, and the company present in the Odd Fellows' lodge room could hardly be accommodated. The order of exercises as presented follows: Instrumental music, Mrs. R. W. Wilbur; address, Supreme Secretary James Shepard, Lawrence; duet, banjo and mandolin, Messrs. Morgan and Trauschke, Lawrence; recitals, the Misses Sullivan, Haverhill; piano solo, "Orfa Grand Polka," Miss Mabel Coan; character song, Mr. Ambrose Eastwood; recital, Mr. Louis Gungl, Lawrence; violin solo, Master Oxtun; vocal duet, Misses Sullivan; piano solo, Master Fred Chaffey; instrumental music, Messrs. Morgan and Trauschke; song, Mr. Eastwood, Lawrence; piano duet, "Merry Princess," Misses Emma and Flossie Sutcliffe; instrumental oddities, Messrs. Morgan and Trauschke; character song, Mr. Eastwood; violin solo, Master Oxtun; closing song, Mr. Eastwood.

A large number of Lawrence friends were present to enjoy the selections. The musical abilities of Messrs. Morgan and Trauschke were quite extended and but few, if any, instruments known to the musical world were missing from their variety. The committee of arrangements were Messrs. Enos S. Robinson, A. V. Chalk, Mrs. E. L. Perley, Miss Emma Truhan.

Box Party.

The box party at Odd Fellows' Hall under the auspices of Wynona Lodge, Friday evening, was quite a successful affair and well attended. The following programme was offered: Address of welcome, Chief Templar Herbert L. Foster; overture, Miss Mary Groesbeck; recital, Miss Bertha Magee; recital, Mr. J. W. Richardson; recital, Mr. H. L. Foster; duet, accordion and piano, Mr. Throver and Miss Tracey; song, Mr. Thrall; recital, Miss Creaser; remarks, Chief Williams, Longfellow Lodge, Mr. Morse, Mr. Noyes, Riverside Lodge, Haverhill, Mrs. Spear, Anchor of Hope Lodge, Lawrence; song, "Till we meet again," audience.

About twenty-five boxes were auctioned off by Mr. Morse. The highest bid was $1.25. The committee of arrangements were Chief Templar Herbert L. Foster, J. W. Richardson, C. W. Hinman, to whom a vote of thanks was extended.

A Rector Called to the Parish.

There was a representative gathering of St. Paul's parish, Monday evening, who were interested in the question of having a rector to minister over the affairs of the church. The meeting was called to order at 7:30 o'clock by J. D. W. French, who considered it necessary for the society to take some action in the matter, as the term of the present minister expired with Easter Sunday. The service of Rev. Edward S. Thomas of Andover and Cambridge having been so acceptable and pleasing during the past six months, it was voted unanimously to extend him a call. There were no other candidates mentioned.

Rev. Mr. Thomas intends to accept the call, and will complete his studies at the Episcopal Seminary, Cambridge, in June, although his ordination will not come until the fall, probably. He is well pleased to be so near his Andover friends, with whom he has passed so many pleasant days. He graduated from Yale College in the class of '88, and afterward studied law for a time at Harvard. His native place is Providence, R.I.

At the conclusion of the meeting remarks were made by Rev. A. H. Amory, T. P. Wentworth, Tom Milner, Peter Reeves, Samuel Goff, Joseph Midwood, and Vestrymen Charles H. Robinson, Joseph Tempest, John Wrigley, Jonas Eastwood.

From Bachelor to Benedict.

Another well-known North Andover man quietly set forth on a journey to the old Granite State Wednesday, and in consequence thereof has renounced his obligations to, and forfeited all rights and privileges in the domain of bachelorhood. In fact, he has lost a title which he can never regain, and yet he does not regret it.

To relate the result of inquiries: A modest home wedding occurred at the residence of Mrs. Hannah D. Godfrey, Candia Village, N.H., last evening at 8 o'clock, the parties immediately concerned being Frank W. Frisbee, Esq., of this town and Miss Alice J. Godfrey, youngest daughter of Mrs. Hannah D. Godfrey. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. H. E. Prescott of the Free Baptist Church, and everything pertaining to the affair was strictly private, only the near relatives of the contracting parties being present. The bride was attired in a becoming gown of cream colored fabric, and carried a cluster of bride's roses.

After a brief absence Mr. and Mrs. Frisbee will return and make their home on Third Street. Both are well and favorably known from continuous residence in town, and each has many warm friends.
